

Then

PETITE & PERKY —
MAY 4, 2009
Julia's polka-dot string bikini is skimpy, but there's still plenty of fabric to cover her A cups.

Now

FULL & FIRM —
AUG. 30, 2010
"I think she looks great either way," Dr. Linder tells Star. "But she looks more proportionate now."

"She looks significantly larger — like a nice, full C cup."
— Dr. Stuart A. Linder

Julia's

NEW BOOBS

Is bigger better? When it comes to her bust, Julia Roberts seems to think so!

JULIA ROBERTS is a natural woman — or so she says. "I want my kids to know when I'm pissed, when I'm happy and when I'm con-founded," the mom of three states. That's why she won't try Botox — even at 42 years old. But the boost to her bustline, which she flaunted in a colorful floral bikini in Oahu, Hawaii, on Aug. 30 could hardly be the work of an industrial-strength push-up bra like the one the Oscar winner wore to portray voluptuous Erin Brockovich in the 2000 drama. "It does look like she had a breast augmentation; they look significantly larger now," observes Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Dr. Stuart A. Linder, who does not treat the actress. "She was probably a 34A or small B, and now she looks more like a nice, full C cup," Dr. Linder tells Star. "Her breasts have more projection, and she certainly fills in her bathing suit much, much better." And while the Eat Pray Love star has been vocal about growing old gracefully — "Your face tells a story, and it shouldn't be a story about your drive to the doctor's office" — it seems that philosophy doesn't apply to her body. In fact, Dr. Linder notes that many women who are anti-surgery experience a change of heart once things begin to sag. "When they get into their 40s or early 50s, everything changes." — ALLISON GALLO ★